23rd year #13 | wed 4/1/70 | seaside ca 93955 | 10¢

LITTLE BIT

...on most anything

It's that time for the biennial moment of truth. For you readers it will be in the voting booth April 14. For the News-Sentinel it is this week.

Our endorsements of candidates and discussion of ballot issues can be found elsewhere on this page.

This continues a News-Sentinel policy of making the endorsements two weeks before the election so that those not chosen may have opportunity for rebuttal in next week's issue.

We are inviting all candidates to use some 1,000 words in the April 8 issue to express their candidacy.

Although they are free to use the space as they wish -- short of libel, of course-- we have suggested a couple of questions they might address themselves to:

What steps do you believe the city could initiate immediately to help property owners and businessmen survive while the national economy is recovering (we're presuming it will) and local urban renewal is returning land to the tax rolls?

How would you answer a constituent who has confided in you that racism is a key factor in his ballot decision?

Seaside voters are encouraged to expound on the election in next week's edition. Letters must be in the News-Sentinel office by Saturday noon.

Sanitation district to try bond issue June 2

The Seaside County Sanitation District Monday voted to ask the county board of supervisors to consolidate with the June 2 primary a $1 million bond issue for improvement of its Sand City sewer treatment plant.

The district has been ordered to cease and desist from polluting Monterey Bay or face possible fines of up to $6,000 a day. Two weeks ago a superior court judge ruled the Seaside district was in effect meeting new state standards for pollution, but the Central Coastal Region Water Quality Control Board refused last week to hear Seaside's request to drop the cease and desist order.

The bond issue would require approximately 21¢ additional on the tax rate and cost the owner of a $20,000 home about $105 a year more in taxes.

Real fireworks on council agenda

Councilmen, in their last meeting before the April 14 election, will discuss fireworks -- literally -- this Thursday at 8 p.m. at city hall.

Before them for consideration of introduction , will be an ordinance updating the city fireworks ordinance.

The council will also consider an ordinance designating the Seaside Police Assn., the Seaside Employees Assn., and the Seaside Firefighters Local 1218 as collective bargaining agents for city employees in labor negotiations. The council accepted a report recommending the ordinance at its last meeting.

Four seek business permits

Four businesses will seek use permits from the Seaside Planning Commission next Wednesday, April 8, at its regular meeting at 8 p.m. in city hall.

Luella Britton of Artichoke Gardens, 1272 Broadway, seeks a use permit to allow a continued nonconforming use of her restaurant-coffee shop. She also seeks a zone change of her property from neighborhood commercial to C-1.

Archie Pitts of 87th Off Broadway Jam Sounds seeks a use permit to allow a teenage club and recreation hall at 1220 Broadway.

Robert Oliver of OliverCycle seeks a use permit for a motorcycle sales and service facility at 1669 Del Monte.

Birdell Henry seeks a use permit to allow a retail and wholesale auto parts store at 2091 Del Monte.

In addition Adeline DiLorenzo, Seaside realtor, seeks a variance permit for a reduction in front and rear yard setbacks at 1431 Judson.

Forum minus 3

ABSENTEES drew brickbats at the traditional candidate's night of the NAACP last week. Missing were Mayor Lou Haddad, who was out of town and who had declined earlier, as well as incumbent councilmen Emil Schmidt and Bud Houser. NAACP President James Taylor criticized their failure to show, as did others. Blasts were leveled at the Monterey Peninsula Herald, which has a stated policy of not covering forums when all candidates do not appear. From left are Taylor, Cecil Bindel, Chairman of the forum; Pearl Carey, council candidate; Jerry McGrath, council candidate; Dave Mitchell, who announced his withdrawal from the council race in favor of Mrs. Carey and McGrath; and Steve Ross, mayoral candidate. The candidates . . . who should run city hall?

editorial

'Speak out on the issues.'

So goes the plea every election. The candidates usually do, after a fashion, but in the end -- in the voting booth -- it mostly comes down to baser things . . . impulse, personality, charisma, advice. . .

But in this city election on April 14 there has to be one dominant influence. We believe it is race.

For the first time in the city's history a black man is running for mayor.

For the first time in the city's history, the blacks have unified behind one council candidate.

This year, more than two years ago or four years ago, the blacks have a chance at proportional representation on the city council.

You can feel it in the community. For the first time there is some self-assurance in that feeling; you can sense it's a good feeling.

A great deal of the confidence is due to that chosen council candidate, a woman who just got down-right stubborn and told the other black candidates she was going to run and she was going to win. They got out of the race, maybe a little reluctantly, but they sensed that she might be able to win.

Of course, not everyone in the black community likes Pearl Carey, but most blacks and most whites in the community know her, because she's been involved in community affairs for 18 years. She's run for election twice and she came close twice; she had a campaign organization; she's put it to work.

Because we believe Mrs. Carey can do more then any other candidate to promote racial harmony in this community, we endorse her candidacy for the city council.

Mrs. Carey's election would place two blacks on the council -- 40 per cent representation. The black population of Seaside is somewhere near 40 per cent. That's fair.

The other black on the council -- Steve Ross -- is challenging Mayor Lou Haddad. (A third candidate, Richard Hamilton, an artist, is not considered a serious contender.)

Our preference for Ross in this race is unfortunately backhanded. It would be stronger if his council seat weren't protected -- he's in mid-term and he'll remain a councilman even if he loses to Haddad.

We disagree with Haddad on most major issues:

We oppose his Laguna Grande plan on the philosophical grounds that with its addition, Seaside's urban renewal agency has virtually usurped local governmental control from the city.

We say, 'Of course,' to one of his apparent major campaign thrusts that urban renewal is absolutely necessary to unburden the property owner from skyrocketing taxes. We counter by saying that tax allocation financing will hold considerable Seaside land off the tax rolls for many years, placing considerable pressure on property owners to pick up the difference. We also point out that contrary to the intention, the assessed valuation in the completed Noche Buena project has begun to decline. We must point out that it will take quite a few Wester Volkswagens to offset the temporary loss of property, sales, in lieu, cigarette and other tax subventions from the decline of business and population in the Gateway Project.

We oppose his location of the library next to city hall because we don't believe it will be used there.

We consider unfortunate his proposal to trade old city hall for the Pit, although we admit it was a crafty political move that could well re-elect him.

We believe Haddad to be a political realist; if he's re-elected without a supporting council majority he will compromise. That gets things done whether you like them or not, and Haddad has gotten things done as mayor. He should be respected for that.

On the other hand, we believe Ross can handle the job, contrary to some, who believe he isn't strong, or decisive, enough. Ross can also compromise, and he has often, but most often he's been compromised; there is a difference -- being active or passive. In the hot seat, we believe Ross could assert himself.

At any rate, Ross is deserving of the job.

For the other council seat, we are going to pull a contradiction. Generally we agree with Jerry McGrath; he's the slate candidate for the anti-Establishment. We've supported him before and have no hesitancy in doing so again; we think he would make an energetic councilman. We would have no quarrel with his election, but we are not going to endorse him.

We believe in devil's advocacy. If both Mrs. Carey and Ross were elected as we suggest, there would be no conservative on the council. Oliver Murray is clearly a liberal.

The only two conservatives are the two incumbent councilmen Emil Schmidt and Bud Houser. Either could carry the banner. Both have worked hard and long for the city.

Obviously we disagree with both of them for many of the same reasons we disagree with Haddad, but we tend to favor Schmidt, his penchant for planning and planting and traditionalism.

One final word: Murray too is a candidate, but for the state assembly. As the only Democrat in the race he will automatically be on the ballot in November. That means seven months of hard campaigning, and it adds up to even less time than he has had in recent months to spend as a councilman.

We realize that the only way to play the game is to run for higher office while you still hold a lower one, but somehow it just seems to hamper the efficiency of government.

And before you quit, if you've lasted this long, take a look into an intriguing crystal ball: Let's say Haddad is re-elected, and Mrs. Carey and Schmidt win council seats, and Murray pulls an upset this fall in the assembly race. That would mean Haddad and Schmidt, and Mrs. Carey and Ross, would have to sit down and choose a new councilman. That might just be the happiest prospect of all.

The propositions . . . mayor vs. Pit

editorial

Three measures on the ballot April 14 will become law if favored by a simple majority of voters. They are important to the future of the city.

The first asks whether to change the term of mayor from the present four years to two years. If it passes, it will take effect immediately and the man elected mayor on April 14 will serve for two years, according to a ruling by the city attorney.

The News-Sentinel opts for the two-year term for the simple reason that it will mean a majority of the council (a mayor and two councilmen) will be up for election every two years or every city election, instead of every four years. That brings local government closer to the voter and at very little more cost since there would be an election anyway. It might encourage a good candidate who would balk at four years in the city's hot-seat but might run if it were only two years.

The other two measures are related. One asks voters if they would allow the city council to sell the old city hall at 1580 Del Monte and the maintenance building behind it. The other asks if voters would allow the council to trade those for the Pit on Broadway just west of Noche Buens.

When Mayor Lou Haddad proposed it, the trade drew strong opposition from Ross and and Murray. Since such a sale of land-- interpreted by the city attorney -- would require a 4-1 vote, the mayor asked to have it placed on the ballot, and got council approval.

As we have said before editorially, we consider the move one of the slickest Haddad has made. He couldn't lose because much of the community -- black and white -- doesn't like the crime and fencing of stolen goods and dope peddling that presumably goes on up there. The police contend they're powerless to clean it up because it's private property.

We contend that the Pit is not really physical, even though it is a place; it is a state of mind, a condition, a result of

The ballot measures . . . straws in the wind

comment

Seaside voters will have a choice of expressing their opinions on a variety of issues not necessarily germain to local government April 14.

It should be stressed that 10 of the ballot measures are advisory only; in other words, they are just a straw poll. Mayor Haddad indicated he thought such a sampling might be informatve to governmental bodies with the power to make decisions on the issues. We don't necessarily agree but four of the councilmen said they would never oppose allowing the voters to express themselves. That's politicians talking, and we suspect that that is pretty much what the mayor had in mind when he proposed the measures. To his credit, Councilman Bud Houser voted against including the measures on the ballot.

Some candidates have indicated they won't make their positions known on the measures; we suspect that this could well be interpreted as an evasion, or at least it will be used by opponents as such.

At any rate, the News-Sentinel believes our readers are entitled to know our opinions on the measures:

A Shall the minimum voting age be lowered to 18 years? We favor this measure, but we don't necessarily find all that convincing the common argument that if a man is old enough to fight and die for his country he should be old enough to vote. Rather we suspect a better reasonis that the United States is getting younger year by year -- soon our average age will be little more than 21; the sheer weight of numbers, the majority, must be recognized by allowing 18-year-olds to vote. As for the argument that the 18-year-old is less likely to be as mature as the 21-year-old, we argue that maturity has a close relationship with the assumption of responsibility. Give it earlier and they'll handle it; the young have championed participatory democracy -- they should be allowed to become involved in it.

B Should Seaside merge into a regional form of government with cities of the Monterey Peninsula? Yes but we have to qualify that because we're on the verge of contradiction. Ideologically, we favor decentralism, and technically a consolidation of cities on the Peninsula would do the opposite, centralize, unless local representation and responsibility could be retained. Some form of borough system, as New York has, seems to be the answer. As an example of just one of the hundreds of injustices heaped upon the poor, Monterey gets all the benefits of a regional shopping center like Del Monte Center in the form of sales tax rebates while cities like Seaside and Pacific Grove watch their businesses decline. Another example: There would be no hassle at all over a regional sewage treatment system if the Peninsula were a borough. Another: Seaside could begin to unshackle itself from the chains of a low property tax base because our low base could be offset by the high values elsewhere on the Peninsula, equalizing the load.

C Should the possession and use of marijuana be legalized? We must admit some fence-straddling on this one because neither side has really convinced us. We would have opposed prohibition and yet alcoholism in this country is certainly no small social problem. Alcohol is more damaging to health than pot, according to the experts, and yet we recognize the statistics showing that most hard drug users started with marijuana. In the end we suspect law enforcement officials won't be any more effective with pot than they were with alcohol, and the possession and use of marijuana will be condoned. Our vote would have to be yes.

D Do you support President Nixon's program for the withdrawal of troops from Vietnam? No. We believe the prolonging of our involvement has merely compounded our difficulties of disengagement, as the new wars in both Laos and Cambodia now show.

E Would you support a program of the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District resulting in redistricting school boundaries and cross-busing students in order to maintain a better ethnic balance in our schools? Absolutely, which is no secret to readers of this newspaper. The faster we desegregate our schools in Seaside the quicker we can expect to get better, more equal education for all the children of the district. We do support a modified zone plan that would allow children to attend a neighborhood school at least three of their six elementary years.

F Do you support the MPUSD Family Life Program as it is currently taught in our schools? Yes. The program is designed to broaden the student's understanding of his family; the outlines we've read clearly indicate this study will strengthen the family as a unit, which, judging by the divorce rate, can't do any harm. And as for the sex education segment that has so upset so many, we can't see why parents should be so worried if they are teaching sex at home as they say they should have a right to do. The school program teaches facts and if students haven't gotten them from their parents, they have a right to get them straight from a teacher trained to teach, not from a boastful peer.

G Should the MPUSD provide partial support to parochial schools if such schools could not continue in operation without such support? Yes, but we speak from the practical side, not the philosophical church vs. state issue. Parochial students have the same right to attend public school as any other sutdent living within the district. If the parochial schools were to close, as Junipero is apparently going to do, those students will become the responsibility of the school district. Parents of parochial school students, if they own property, already are supporting public schools through their taxes, in addition to the tuition they pay. Their argument says it would be less costly to help Junipero, for example, than to bring in all its students into MPUSD. Opponents argue that helping Roman Catholics would mean the district would be liable for supporting other private schools. And other opponents use the familiar it-makes-me-bitter retort: Why should our tax money go to help families who don't believe our public schools are good enough for their children? It's a moot point because state law prohibits tax monies to be used for support of parochial institutions.

H Shall the name of the city be changed? Perhaps we have a thing about government legislating people in and out of business, but this would be just too much. The sign ordinance passed last year, which we supported by the way, is going to prove healthy enough business boon for the signmaker as it is. Can you imagine what it would be like if the name of the city were changed? And we have nothing against sign companies. We believe this one came up because one time Mayor Haddad suggested that Seaside disincorporate and annex itself to Del Rey Oaks to rid itself of its bad image. We can't believe that the mayor was any more serious in that suggestion than he was with the name change.

I Should a four-year college be established on the Monterey Peinsula? We don't believe there are enough students graduated from local schools to support a four-year school of the size necessary to be economical. That would mean drawing students from outside the area, which this beauty spot certainly would do, and we rather imagine that might have a depressing economic effect on the Peninsula. We are

LETTERS

To the Citizens of Seaside it is time to exercise your million dollar privilege again in Seaside. It is a time that people could have intelligent people in Seaside. It is time for everyone to get busy. If you are convinced your candidate is the best one, it does one no harm to tell people and wxplain why. One thing we all have to remember after April 14 is if things don't go like we planned, we will have to keep on working and living in Seaside. There was a time before tight money days we could say "if things don't go like I want them to, I will sell out and leave." BUT NO MORE.

I would like to say to the candidates - every knock you give your opponent is a boost to him. So if we could hear the candidates speak on their intentions instead of their opponents.

Also there are a lot of untitled jobs waiting for some ambitious person. So to have the type of city we want, is on April 14 you miss your first choice of a city representative, then by all means you have voiced your opinion as to how you want Seaside to be led. Some times there is a little more ground work needed to be done before you make an outstanding leader. And as citizens of Seaside we should not expect our officials to do everything we want done. We should be present from time to time at the meetings, make our requests and face facts.

As citizens we should not put an order in that we want filled then rush down to City Hall and see about that one thing and then forget it again until we want another favor. The hopes of the people can be accomplished if we all put our shoulder to the wheel and work toward what we want accomplished. I resent

I resent name calling and lambasting. I think as the issues are spelled out by our candidates, we as citizens should be reading them and listening to them.

It does no harm to comment to a friend, "You should have head John Doe last night," or "Did you read that article in the paper." These are the things I would like to see accomplished.

I have had friends call me and say "Did you read that candidates statement the other night. It really impressed me and he was not criticizing anyone, he was really sticking with the issues.

Well as I said at the out set, please exercise your privilege and that is your voting privilege. Think wise, think well, think for your self, but of all things, every good citizen should get out and vote.

Your Social Security

By Raymond MacDonald

Q. What are the basic requirements that must be met in order for a young person to receive benefits as a student?

A. Assuming that the student is the child of a retired, disabled, or deceased person who is insured under Social Security, benefits may be paid if the student is (1) 18 through 21 years old; (2) a full-time student at an accredited school; (3)unmarried.

A. Why is one who is receiving Social Security not permitted to earn over $1680 and still receive the total amount of Social Security in one year?

A. With the idea that Socail Security payments are retirement benefits, Congress has stated that one who does not earn more than $1680 per year is retired. If an individual who is receiving Social Security earns more than this, his Social Security would be reduced according to his total amount of earnings for the year. If this figure of $1680 was not in the law and benefits were paid to everyone at age 65 regardless of their earnings, the cost would be about $2 billion a year. This amount would go to people who are fully employed and would not seem to be the best way to spend $2 billion. Beginning with the month in which a person reaches age 72, there are no earnings restrictions.

too many years of injustice, of unequal opportunity, of so many collective years on the dole or wine bottle; it's the embodiment of Seaside's ghetto.

We can see no reason for opposing the first measure to allow the city council to sell the old city hall. We would expect such action if they found a buyer willing to make a good deal for the city. But the Pit trade offer is not all that good, when the city assumes a mortgage with principal of $43,000 and interest of $17,000 at 6 per cent interest over a 10-year period payments of $498 a month. The Pit owner, Dominic Mineo, would pay $20,000 at the same percentage with no down payments of $125 a month and a lump sum at the end of a half-dozen years.

We can't oppose transforming the Pit into a viable shopping center or educational or training center, but we can't go along with trading old city hall for it.

The proposal tends to be another of those seemingly innocent and undoubtedly sincere attempts to help blacks clean up a dark and ugly spot when the end result is really just a whitewash.

Regardless of the outcome we fear this measure will open a wound that won't heal easily. But we oppose it because there just has to be a better way. CML reasoning, perhaps without too many hard facts, that most students need to work to stay in school, and there isn't enough work now on the Peninsula. It is true that the types of high-class industries the Peninsula seems to want tend to locate where there is an intellectual labor pool. If that were true, such a four-year college would help our employment woes by bringing more business and industry. We should also note that the educational climate is logical because of the Naval Postgraduate School, the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies, the Defense Language Institute, not to mention Monterey Peninsula College. Philosophically, we would welcome a four-year school, but we have to wonder whether the Peninsula could support it.

Would you favor a property tax increase to support a library east of Fremont? Haddad engineered this loaded question. The council has already decided over the opposition of Steve Ross and Oliver Murray to locate the new library next to city hall because the city already owns the property. The majority, Haddad, Schmidt and Houser, claims there is no suitable land east of Fremont on which to build one. By serving up the choice of raising property taxes to build and buy east of Fremont, the majority gets off the hook regardless how the voters decide. If they favor the measure, the council then may raise taxes to build and buy because the voters said so. If the voters say no, the council will consider it support of their contention that the city can only afford to build on land already owned by the city. Considering this, we see no other way to vote than yes, because we strongly believe a library east of Fremont is necessary enough to add some more dollars on our tax bill, and we believe what the library experts say: Placing the library in the corner of the city could reduce its use by as much as 60 per cent. BOB WOOD REPORTS

A Weekly Column By The 34th District Assemblyman

I doubt if there was ever an incumbent that has been elected to a public office who looked forward with anticipation to an upcoming election. However, I must be honest with myself, and with you, for it is through this democratic procedure that an elected official (including your Assemblyman) is kept on his toes. Elections require time, a considerable lot of work on the part of many people, and in most cases some financial backing by the interested citizenry. I get to thinking that the time I will have to spend in campaigning could be better spent in working toward improved legislation and where needed, new legislation, but when we look at the whole procedure in a broad spectrum I realize that election results to a public representative such as myself is somewhat similar to a report card to a school student. It is only by these returns, do we know if we are doing our job staisfactory to the majority of the people represented. If an incumbent fails in this periodic testing he or she is removed from office and this is the way it should be. If I am not representing the thinking of the majority of the people regardless of political affiliations I have no right to be here in Sacramento nor would I care to be.

Even though elections are somewhat tiring to a candidate I am sure the competition created by the filing of several candidates in any election is a good thing for the people and after all we represent the people, and only the people.

We all know this is the year of ecology and environment and it may well be that the measures now being presented stand a better chance of successful pasage. There is no doubt need for strong legislation in the area of litter alone. Forty-eight billion cans and twenty-eight billion bottles are discarded annually in the United States, and figures show there are ten million thrown away each day in California. One has only to drive up the beautiful Carmel Valley road and continue on over the mountains and drop down into the equally beautiful Arroyo Seco Canyon to Highway 101 to see that we in Monterey County have our share of roadside litter. It is a statistical fact that 80% of the litter defacing our parks, our beaches and our highways is in the form of non-disposal cans or bottles. The waste of taxpayers money to clean up the litter along the highways is a whopping five million in a year. I am sure most of us wish that the citizenry would take enough pride in our beautiful country that they would not want to detract from its beauty by discarding litter along our highways. But to date this has not been the case and someting is going to have to be done and immediately. One major soft drink manufacturer has indicated that they might have a possible break through on the scientific development of the self-destructing pop bottle. After a certain amount of time, claims the manufacturer, the chemical makeup of the empty bottle would react to the atmosphere or soil and literally disintegrate. The proposals for legislation past and present are many and varied. In any event, the year of ecology may provide a solution to this monumental unslightly problem which I am sure no man is proud of.

Enuf for now.

Welfare cutbacks to be analyzed

State Administration proposals to make cutbacks in California's welfare progrzms will be analyzed by speakers for the California League of Senior Citizens at a meeting this Friday at 10:30 a.m. at the Club House Building, 927 Hilby Ave., between Fremont and Wheeler in Seaside.

A noon potluck follows the metting.

Emphasis will be placed on ye financial distress that would strike children of pensioners, as well as recipients themselves, if proposed changes in welfare laws passed the legislature. Increases in relative responsiblity contributions, reduction of personal property allowances, lien requirements, and payment cuts are being considered in Sacramento. These policies are being vigorously opposed by the California League of Senior Citizens.

The League is a non-profit, humanitarian organization devoted to improving the living conditions of the elderly and public assistance recipients. Admission will be free, and the public is invited to attend.

Counselors needed

Students interested in applying for counselor positions at the Camp Amigos summer day camp in Carmel Valley should attent one of two group interview meetings: Wednesday, April 8, at King Junior High School in Seaside, room F2; or Wednesday, April 15, at All Saints' Episcopal Church in Carmel. Both interview sessions will start at 7:30 p.m.

Counselor applications may be obtained in advance from the counseling office at Seaside High School, or by calling Mrs. Thomas White at 624-3014.

Children living in Seaside, Fort Ord and Marina will have a chance to attend Camp Amigos, a registered non-profit corporation.

A verse from the book of Micah is taken from the Lesson Sermon titled "Unreality," whih will be read this Sunday in Christian Science churches.

Services are held at 11 a.m. at the three Christian Science churches on Monterey Peninsula.

Next Sunday's program on the Christian Science radio series "The Bible Speaks to You," is titled "Overcoming Fear of the Night." It may be heard at 7:45 a.m. on Station KRML, 1410 kc.

Taxpayers Ask IRS

Q) Instead of making an estimated tax declaration, can I just increase my withholding?

A) Yes. To determine your additional withholding, use the worksheet that came with the estimated tax package.

If you did not get an estimated forms package, the Form 1040ES worksheet may be obtained at your local IRS office.

Q) My father died last year and my wife and I are now supporting my mother. Are her social security benefits counted as income?

A) Social security benefits are not counted in determining whether she had gross income of $600 or more. These benefits are counted, however, in determining whether you provided more than half her support.

To meet the support test, you must provide more than half the cost of her food, clothing, shelter, medical and similar expenses for the entire year.

Q) I forgot to claim my Blue Cross premiums when I sent in my return. Is it too late to do it?

A) No. Generally you may make a change in your return by filing Form 1040X, Amended U.S. Individual Income Tax Return. Copies of this form and instructions are available at local IRS offices.

Q) Where on my tax return should I report the excess reimbursement I get from my company for travel expenses?

A) This should be reported on Schedule E, Part III. Other miscellaneous income that should be reported here include alimony, prizes, awards, and state income tax refunds.

Income from Schedule E should be entered on line 14 of your Form 1040 along with income from any Schedule C, D or F you are filing.

Q) Last year my teenager made about $350 a year on his newspaper route. Is this taxable to him or me?

A) His income is not taxable to you. Your son should report this income if his total earnings from all sources amount to $600 or more for the year.

If his total earnings were less than $600 but income tax was withheld, he must file a return to claim a refund.

Q) I'm moving in a few weeks and my refund hasn't come. What should I do?

A) If your refund does not come before you move, notify your postmaster of your new address so your refund can be forwarded. Lack of an up-to-date mailing address is a major cause of delayed refunds.

Q) Do you have to itemize deductions to claim moving expenses?

A) No, you may take the standard deduction and still claim your moving expenses. To do this, complete Form 3903 and enter the total on line 15b of Form 1040. Be sure to attach Form 3903 to your return.

Your local IRS office has copies of this form and the necessary instructions.

Q) My wife died last year. Can I still file a joint return?

A) Yes, a joint return may be filed by the surviving spouse for the year in which the death occurred and an exemption for the decedent taken on the return. You may also be entitled to the benefits of a joint return rate for the two years after your spouse's death. This is explained in the 1040 instructions.

Q) Can I deduct any part of my dues to a charitable organization as a contribution?

A) Dues paid to qualified organizations are deductible as contributions to the extent they exceed the value of membership services or privileges received in return. Any contributions you make to their fund raising appeals, however, may qualify.

Q) How do I figure my tax surcharge?

A) If your tax is less than $735, you may determine the amount of surcharge you owe from the Surcharge Tables on Page T–1 of the 1040 instructions package. For a tax of $735 and over, multiply the tax by 10 percent to figure the surcharge.

Q) My wife and I are filing separate returns. Can I itemize while she takes a standard deduction?

A) No, on separate returns each must use the same method of handling deductions. If one of you itemizes, then both must itemize deductions.

Q) How does the $100 deductible on a casualty loss work?

A) The first $100 of a non-business casualty or theft loss is not deductible. Amounts over that can be deducted but the loss must be reduced by insurance or other reimbursement received or expected to be received.

The $100 deductible applies to each loss. This is further explained in the 1040 instruction package.

Q) I've been unable to get a W–2 form from the job I had before I moved here. What should I do?

A) If you cannot get this W–2, report all your income and withholding as accurately as you can and file your return on time. Explain why the W–2 is missing on the back of the Form 1040 and tell how you figured the withholding.

Q) Last year my tax payment was not properly credited by IRS. What can I do to keep this from happening again?

A) Put your Social Security number on your check or money order, make this payable to the Internal Revenue Service, and indicate what the payment is for. Should your payment be separated from your return or notice accompanying it, this identifying information will assure that the payment is properly credited. Cash should never be sent through the mails.

Q) My father never took out his citizenship papers. Does that mean I won't be able to claim him as a dependent?

A) If he is a resident of the United States and the other dependency tests are met, you may claim him as a dependent.

Q) To claim the retirement income credit, is it necessary to have worked each of the last ten years?

A) No, to qualify for this credit, you need only have earned at least $600 in each of any ten calendar years before the current year. Instructions and the schedule for claiming this credit may be found in the Form 1040 package.

Retires

CLYDE W. SMITH (right) receives his certificate of retirement from service with the Dept. of Army for twenty years and also is presented with a Certificate of Achievement for his services at the Army Combat Developments Command Experimentation Command at Fort Ord, where he last served. Making the presentation is Maj. Lee Retherford, Deputy Adjutant General. Smith, who lives at 2082 Paralta St., Seaside, has served at CDCEC's AG Office as a military personnel clerk to the chief of the personnel management branch.

Students beautify school grounds

The students of Ord Terrace School in Seaside had a busy and interesting time during conservation week. As special guests, they had Ranger Harry Batlin from Point Lobos State Park who spoke on conservation and the importance of protecting our environment. Mr. and Mrs. Colton of Carmel Valley gave a talk to the primary and intermediates grades on "Saving the Wolf" which appears to be headed for extinction.

As part of their conservation studies, the students held a poster and essay contest with the winners to receive a free lunch and certificate of merit. Winner of the best poster was Reynaldo Guerrero, sixth grader; best conservation story was won by Yvonne Afvarez, second grader; and best poem was won by Vivian Jackson, sixth grader.

As a culmination to conservation week and with the assistance of Robert Hatley, head gardener for the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District, a tree planting ceremony was held by the students. Monterey cypress trees were polanted behind the school, one for each grade level kindergarten through sixth grade plus one extra tree making a total of eight trees planted to beautify the school grounds.

Education campaign launched against venereal disease

Private and public health organizations are jlining forces for an April onslought against California's number one public health enemy, today, Veneral Disease, with a concentrated education program directed towards youth throughout Northern California.

Declaring April as Veneral Disease Awareness Month, the public information campaign will attempt to break through the furor over drug abuse and other social problems and focus public attention on venereal disease which has reached epidemic proportions in Califomis and which has now become the State's leading communicable disease.

Conducting the intensive VD program is the Northern California Pharmaceutical Association and the Bay Area Venereal Disease Association in cooperation with the State Dept. of Public Health.

"While the public has been looking in other directions, venereal disease has become a rampaging wildfire throughout the state and threatens to afflict one out of every ten high school students, this year," according to James Boynton, president of the Northern California Pharmaceutical Association.

Public Health records show that over 101,000 cases of venereal disease, 90,000 cases of gonorrhea and 11,000 cases of syphilis, were reported in California last year (1969)." according to Boynton.

In Monterey County there were 667 cases of gonorrhea among civilians along in 1969, an increase of 200 cases from 1968. There were 82 reported cases of syphilis last year among civilians compared with 67 the year before, according to the Monterey County Health department.

"This is one-fifth of the entire nation's total reported venereal disease cases of nearly 500,000 in 1969; and San Francisco is second only to Atlanta in the number of cases reported in U.S. cities," the pharmacy spokesman revealed.

Public Health officials, however, believe that only one out of four or five cases of venereal disease are actually reported and that California's total could well be 500,000 cases last year while some 2 million to 2.5 million cases of venereal disease would be a more realistic national total.

The highest incidence of venereal disease is among the 15 to 25 age group in California, where it is estimated one out of every 10 persons will be infected in 1970, according to the California Public Health Dept. projections.

Benereal disease information and prevention literature is being made available to the public throughout April at all Northern California Pharmaceutical Association-member pharmacies, some 1200 commujity pharmacies throughout the northern half of the State.

In addition, Young Drug Products is undertaking a state-wide Venereal Disease information advertising campaign and educational material is being given to all newspapers and radio and television stations in the area.

Venereal Disease Teach-Ins for high school and college teachers, ministers, nurses and all persons working with young people have been held in San Francisco and another will be held at the University of Pacific in Stockton on April 25.

"Ignorance, prejudice and lack of proper educational programs are the major causes fanning the fires of venereal disease and, contrary to popular notions, gonorrhea and syphilis do not always produce recognizable symptions, particularly in women, until serious harm has been done," the president of the Northern California Pharmaceutical Association said.

He pointed out that venereal disease can easily be cured if caught early enough, but can just as easily cause permanent physical damage, pain, sterility, blindness and even death if untreated....and can infect many others.

Boynton urged that sutdents, parents and young adults, alike, obtain the free venereal disease literature being made available at all N.C.PH.A pharmacies or ask pharmacists, family doctors or public health officials about VD.

"And, every young person who is sexually active and who has any cause for concern, should have a medical checkup immediately and at least once a year thereafter," he added.

Joining in the battle against venereal disease, some 10,000 San Francisco Bay Area students and an anticipayed 1000 teachers will march from door to door distributing VD literature on April 25.

"Venereal disease will not go away by ignoring it, but only through education, through treatment and by learning how to prevent it," the Northern California Pharmaceutical Association president said.
